Part I Writing

参考范文:

We are now living in an era of information explosion. Many newly developed technological devices and software are now closely linked with our daily lives. Almost everyone can publish online information. So, sometimes it's hard for young people to determine whether online information sources are authentic or not. The following measures can help them judge the reliability of online information.

First of all, young people themselves should cultivate a habit of gathering credible resources via multiple channels. Normally, information on the internet is showed in selective ways. Some news is even biased. However, news from official channels and authorities is usually more objective and accurate. Thus obtaining information through multiple channels is necessary and useful. Secondly, young people should improve their ability of judgment. To verify online materials, they must have a wealth of knowledge reserves and good independent thinking ability. They should think twice before making a judgement or decision.

In conclusion, as an increasing number of young people are joining the information era, our younger generation must acquire necessary skills to evaluate online information to become informed and rational citizens.

The site of the first National Congress of the Communist Party of China is located at No. 76 Xingye Road, Shanghai, which is a typical Shanghai-style building and was built in the fall of 1920. On July 23, 1921, the first National Congress of the Communist Party of China was held in the building and the congress adopted the first program and the first resolution of the party, elected the central leadership, and announced the birth of the party. In September, 1952, the site was renovated and turned into a memorial hall open to the public. Apart from offering the introduction of the representatives attending the first National Congress of the CPC, the memorial hall also provides the introduction of the history of the CPC and now it has become a patriotic education base to understand the history of the party and remember revolutionary martyrs.

Growing up is a process of developing mental and emotional independence, so it is normal for young people to have their idols. But nowadays, young people pay too much attention to celebrities, sometimes disrupting their social lives and school work. We must firmly oppose the irrational star chasing.

Firstly, adolescents should form a correct view of idol worship and not be obsessed by stars. They'd better cultivate their abilities of independent thinking and spend their time and energy studying. Besides, it is advised that they listen to the opinions of their teachers and parents and not indulge in the small circle of star chasing. Secondly, it is imperative for the government and regulators to rectify the entertainment and culture industry. For pop stars, they should shoulder their social responsibilities, regulate their behaviors and deliver positive energy, thus setting a good model for young people. Thirdly, for parents, in addition to letting their children understand what kinds of celebrities are worth chasing, they should also guide them in a reasonable way.

In my opinion, those soldiers who protect our country, the selfless medical staff and pioneers in all fields of construction are the real stars. Young people might as well chase these stars.

Yan'an City, located in northern Shaanxi province and on the middle reaches of the Yellow River, is a holy land of the Chinese revolution. Mao Zedong and other revolutionaries of the older generation lived and fought here for 13 years, led the War of Resistance Against Japanese Aggression and the War of Liberation, nurtured the "Yan'an Spirit" and made great contributions to the Chinese revolution. With the largest number of revolutionary sites that are distributed widest and have the highest level in the country, Yan'an is a national educational base for patriotism, revolutionary tradition and the Yan'an Spirit. Yan'an boasts nine revolutionary memorials, which house a large number of important items preserved by the CPC Central Committee and the older generation of revolutionaries during the Yan'an period, thus enjoying the reputation of China's Revolutionary Museum City.

There is much knowledge in raising children. Parents must not only protect their children, but also learn to let go of them at the right time. However, some parents are overprotective of their children, depriving them of the opportunity to explore the world on their own.

On the one hand, if parents overprotect their children and do not let them endure hardship at all, their children will not grow up to be independent adults. On the other hand, many parents can't distinguish between true love and spoiled love. The essence of love is to give children freedom, tolerating and appreciating them, while the essence of spoiled love is overprotection and control. In fact, parents shouldn't try to help their children remove almost all obstacles of everyday life. Instead, they should give their children a chance to take risks and make mistakes. Frequently talking to their children and encouraging them to try what they can do will help them become independent and confident adults.

Overprotection has a negative effect on children. Parents should keep in mind that no matter how much they are reluctant, they must let go of their children because their children's future is dependent on their own efforts.

参考译文:

Located on the border between Hunan and Jiangxi provinces, Jinggangshan is praised as “the Red Cradle of the Chinese Revolution” owing to its glorious revolutionary history. In October 1927, the revolutionaries of the older generation, including Mao Zedong and Zhu De headed the Chinese Workers’ and Peasants’ Red Army here. They launched an arduous struggle, founded the first rural revolutionary base area, ignited the spark of the Chinese revolution, and opened up a road of “besieging the cities from the countryside and seizing power by armed force”—a revolutionary path with Chinese characteristics.³ From here the Chinese revolution marched to victory. Jinggangshan now possesses more than 100 old revolutionary sites, making it a “wall-less museum of revolutionary history” and an essential base for education of patriotism and revolutionary tradition.
