Part I Writing参考范文：

Today there is a growing awareness that mental well-being needs to be given as much attention as physical health. In modern society, an increasing number of people are suffering from a variety of psychological problems, which have led to many serious consequences and even tragedies. Therefore, we should attach more importance to our mental health.

For one thing, mental health has an important impact on physical health. When a person is in a good mental state, his or her body will also feel relaxed and comfortable, thus reducing the risk of disease. However, psychological problems like anxiety and depression not only affect people's moods, but also may lead to a series of physical symptoms, such as headache, stomachache, insomnia and so on. For another, mental health also affects an individual's quality of life. A mentally healthy person tends to be more optimistic and confident, and better able to cope with various challenges and stresses in life. This positive attitude can contribute to personal growth and development.

To conclude, mental health is a vital component of one's overall well-being. Only when a person is both physically and mentally healthy can he or she be considered truly healthy.

Part IV Translation参考译文：

With the accelerating development of Chinese cities in recent years, the living environment of citizens has significantly improved. Many cities have strived to explore a high-quality development path with Chinese characteristics, with urban functions continuously improved and governance level markedly raised. China has ceaselessly carried out urban ecological restoration and function repair, comprehensively renovating old residential areas and vigorously promoting urban landscaping to eliminate pollution. At the same time, great efforts have been made to promote systematic construction of urban infrastructure and to conduct general surveys of housing construction and municipal facilities as well as the investigation and rectification of their potential safety hazards, so as to create a high-quality living environment for citizens, which is more beautiful, safer and more livable.
